College years, years dedicated to academic growth and achievement. Here at Salve we have strived to attain our past goals along with reaching for ones of the future. Whether it was in the classroom, the dorms, or on the campus, we were brought together. Meeting new classmates, roommates, and neighbors, we shared of ourselves and learned from one another.

We expressed to one another our values and beliefs — standing up for ourselves and stating our opinions — our developing identities continued to flourish.

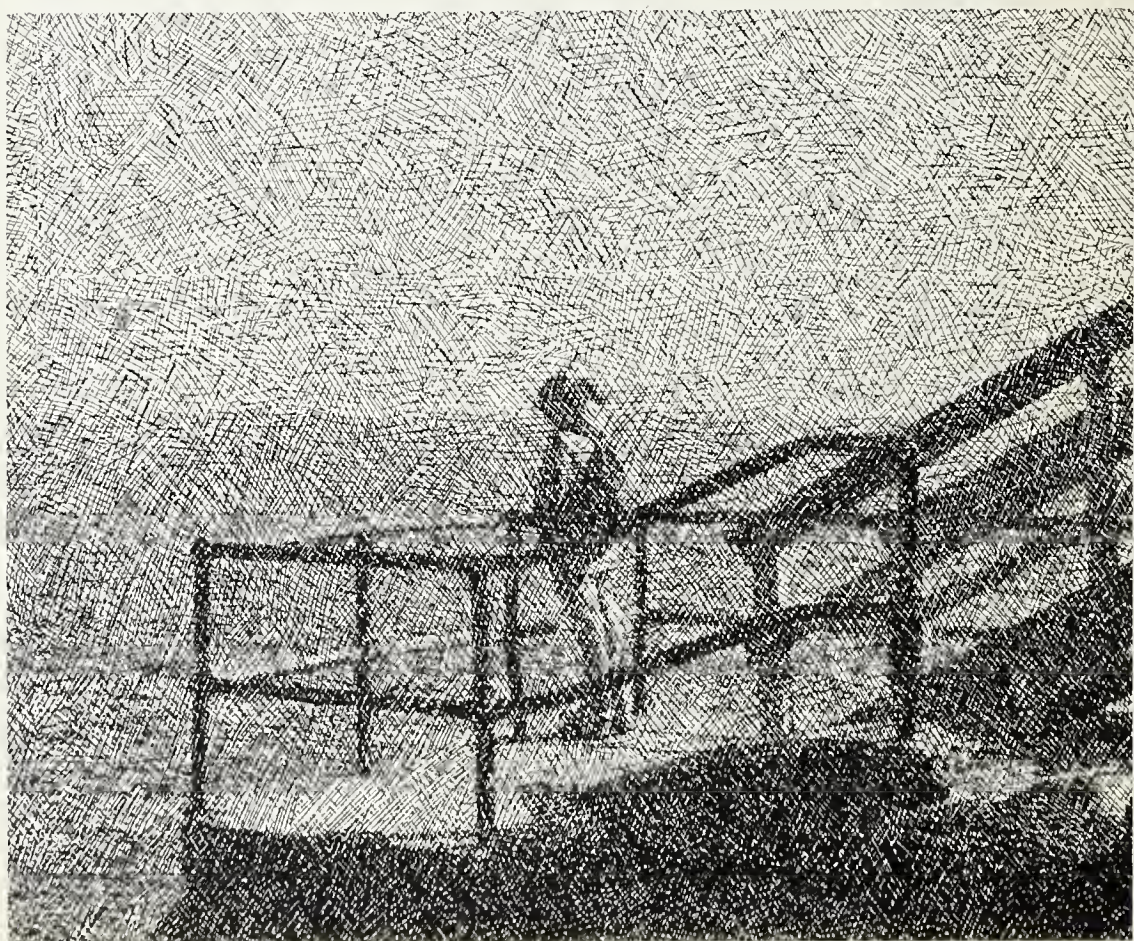

Along with this independence and self-identity we learned other valuable lessons. Those which are not taught in the classroom. We learned the meaning of friendship, trust and the message of happiness and love.

There were so many roads which we traveled together. Those first days of introductions soon led up to paths of friendship and love.

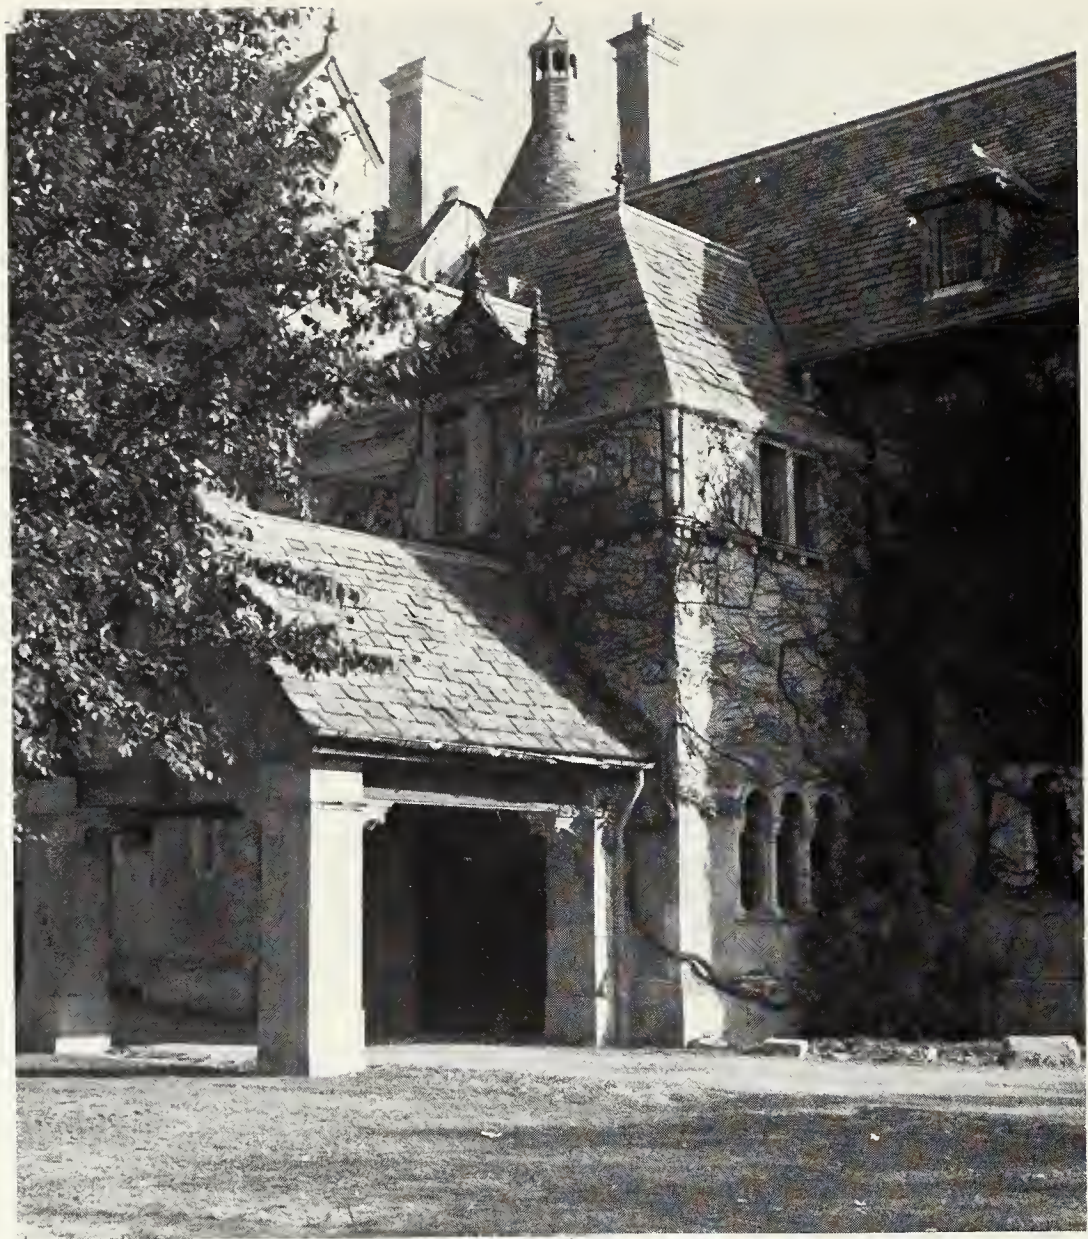

Days of laughter, the sharing of tears and so much more brought us closer together. These times made those roads of frustration and confusion so much easier to pass by.

The time has come for us to travel on new roads, roads which will lead to our dreams. For some of us, we may continue to travel similar by-ways. But, for many, our directions will vary. Only the memories of the days when we were together will be with us.

Those memories, however, will fill our future days. Enclosed within this book are the many faces and places which we have encountered. For each of us there will be a different memory of the following pages. Not all can be recaptured in the confines of this book — but for all, the feelings of friendship, growth and happiness will fill our thoughts. Those memories of our college years.

The time has come for closing books,
And long last looks must end.
And as I leave, I know that I am leaving

FACULTY

ACCOUNTING

The Department of Accounting seeks to provide students with opportunities to develop either a major concentration in the field of accounting or supplement other fields of study with course work which will enhance the breadth of their total education experience.

The major in accounting provides opportunities for students to obtain the background necessary to prepare for public, private and government accounting positions. The demand for competent men and women, capable of forming ethical and moral judgments in the business community, is continually increasing. Graduates of a program based in the teachings of Christian ethics and moral integrity are excellent candidates to fill these positions.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

L. to R. Charlene Pietrzyk, Jane Blumette, Karen McPoland, Lori Legowski, Helen McGee, Clare Averbach, Michelle Lareau, Debbie Branton, Coach Paul Cardoza.

The women's tennis team, under the coaching of Paul Cardoza, concluded their 1981 fall season on a positive note.

Although the team did not post a winning record, the team shows promise for next year with veterans Lori Legowski, Helen McGee, and rookies Debbie Branton and Melissa Stanton to form the nucleus of next year's squad.

At the AIAW State Tournament at PC, Salve faced tough competition from Brown, URI, PC, RIC and Bryant, although senior Clare Averbach did make it to the quarterfinals.

With more experience, more playing time, and better facilities, Salve's women's tennis team could prove to be one of the better teams in the state.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

In their first year of inter-collegiate competition, the women's varsity soccer team performed admirably during the 1981 fall season.

Coached by Paul Kielbasa, former Salve men's soccer standout, the women played an 8-game season, and, although the season was not a successful one, fans should keep their hopes high for next fall.

The team consists mostly of sophomores and juniors, with a sprinkling of freshmen and seniors. The women to watch in the future are juniors Connie Bettencourt, and Ellie Cummings, freshmen Lynn Parsonage and Monique Mungeon, and goalie Sally Willis.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Dedication, enthusiasm, hard work and desire to win were just a few of the ingredients that the women's varsity basketball team combined to produce a winning 1981-82 season.

Some tall, athletic freshmen in the forms of Sheila Smith, Nettie Harper and Michaela Barbato, as well as veteran Monica Provost, were the key to the successful 14-game season.

Jean Zimmerman, first-year coach and asst. athletic director for women, cited the women's enthusiastic team sport, and is looking forward to facing even stiffer competition next winter.

MEN'S SOCCER

L. to R. Back row: Karl Weaver, Juan, Pat Ricard, Kevin Martin, Jim Santos, Dennis Tolland, Jim Nelson, Al Gagnon, Lee Allison and Coach Mike Sergersen. Front row: Dave Buckley, Tony Cambrola, Steve Thomas, Pat Beron, Mike Hanley, Bruce Smith, Manjit Amrit, Joel.

The men's varsity soccer team closed their fifth season of competition with high hopes for the future.

First-year coach Mike Sergersen found himself with a relatively young, inexperienced, yet eager sixteen-man team.

The team will lose five strong seniors to graduation; however, Pat Beron, Steve Thomas, Pat Ricard, and goalie Mike Hanley should provide the strength and experience needed to post a winning record.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

Although the men's varsity basketball team was not as successful as the women's they are equally dedicated and hard working.

The team consisted of mostly freshmen and sophomores. Juniors Chris Perrotti and Andy Corsini were two of the team's veterans; freshmen standouts included Brian Lynch and Mike McCann.

The 14-game season included two against Catholic University as well as the Division III contenders. Mike Chadwick, second year coach, is looking forward to developing the young potential he has on the team next winter.

L. to R. Back Row: Danny O'Brien, Brian Lynch, Chris Perrotti, Jay Morris, Al Curnow, Pat Beron. Front Row: John Shea, Andy Corsini, Leon Finneran, Michael McCann

COMMENCEMENT

Graduation — is it a beginning or an ending? As a graduation, it is the formal end of our undergraduate studies. As a commencement time, it is an opportunity to face new beginnings. For some it is a time for sadness, as well as a time for rejoicing. For all, it is a turning point in our lives — an end and a beginning.

As we begin, are we ready to accept the world which is placed before us? I think we are — if we believe we are — for we have been well prepared. What lies in our past — the grief/the joys — the hard times/the happy times — the struggles/the success — the failures/the triumphs — these have all influenced our growth — our growth in knowledge, in love, and in relationships. All of our experience in the past will influence our experience to come. Our experiences here at the college have enhanced our individuality, have shaped us to pursue a purpose — our own purpose. Whether artists, or servants, or advocates, or leaders — each of us carries within us the gift to reach out to touch others as we have been touched here.

Teachers — consider all of the hours you have spent to help us develop our minds, our souls, our possibilities — consider the thought, the feeling, the effort you gave to your work — we do, and we thank you.

Parents — remember your patience, your support, your guidance so generously given — remember your love, your understanding, your belief you have in your children — we do and we love you.

Friends — recall the laughter, the tears, the intensity of relationships — believe in the magical reality of souls who have grown together. We look to each other and see the part of each that has become a part of ourselves. Friends are treasures — never to be lost, for we take them with us — and carry on.

There is a path for us; we can find it and follow it. We must not see in our future darkness or uncertainty. Rather, we should see in it the light of the possibilities that are within ourselves. We should see the opportunities waiting for us. We must live all our dreams and create our own roles if we are to find what we are searching for. We must dare to take risks. In the face of obstacles, we can not give up. Instead. We must give of ourselves as others have for us. Then, our innermost aspirations will become reality. If it is worth the dream, it is worth the effort.

Mary Beth Cordeiro

It is only with our heart that one can see rightly; what is essential is invisible to the eye. See then the ending and seek the beginnings with your heart.

THE PURSUIT OF EXCELLENCE IN PATIENT CARE

Graduate Nurses begin your career by moving into Rhode Island Hospital's Professional Nursing Model and share our primary goal:

EXCELLENCE IN PATIENT CARE

As part of the Professional Nursing Model, you'll participate in decisions affecting patient care. You'll assess patient needs, then plan, implement and evaluate the effectiveness of nursing intervention.

Our 719-bed hospital offers the educational advantages of a university affiliated teaching facility and the professional advantages of a major, acute care hospital designated as Rhode Island's Trauma Center.

A comprehensive 4 week classroom/clinical orientation followed by an individualized unit orientation with a preceptor will welcome you to our Department of Nursing where nursing is caring, sharing, challenging and rewarding.

Contact Pat Monti, Department of Nursing, Rhode Island Hospital, 593 Eddy Street, Providence, RI 02902. (401) 277-5353.
